Scholarship search tips

1. Begin your search early, and conduct as much research as you can. Apply for every scholarship for which you are eligible.
2. Meet all deadlines.
3. Follow directions. Provide everything that is requested, but no more than is required.
4. List all activities and honors, highlighting those that are relevant to the scholarship.
5. Neatness counts. Unless handwritten is required, your application should be neatly typed.
6. Make a photocopy of the application before you begin. If you make a mistake, you can start fresh with a clean copy. Also make a copy or scan the completed application, so you can resend it if the original is lost.
7. Ask for help if you need it. Don't hesitate to call the funding organization.
8. Write an essay that makes a strong impression. Tell a story and use personal examples.
9. Choose references that know you well and give them plenty of time to write a recommendation. Provide a stamped envelope to your references addressed to the address that is specified in the scholarship application.
10. Give your application (and/or essay) a final "once-over." Ask a friend, teacher, or parent to proofread it.

Beware of scams

- Read the fine print, and make sure you understand all terms and conditions before accepting any award.
- Be wary of companies that “guarantee” you’ll receive a scholarship, especially if their offer was unsolicited and/or they are requiring that you pay money for their services.
- Never provide any confidential or personal identification information to an unfamiliar person or organization.
- Remember that there are many free scholarship searches available, where you can get all the information you need at no charge.
- Contact the financial aid office at your college with any questions or concerns.
- Check their privacy policy, and check that they won’t sell your contact information.
